

NEWPORT'S SUMMER COLONY FEELS WAR THRILL

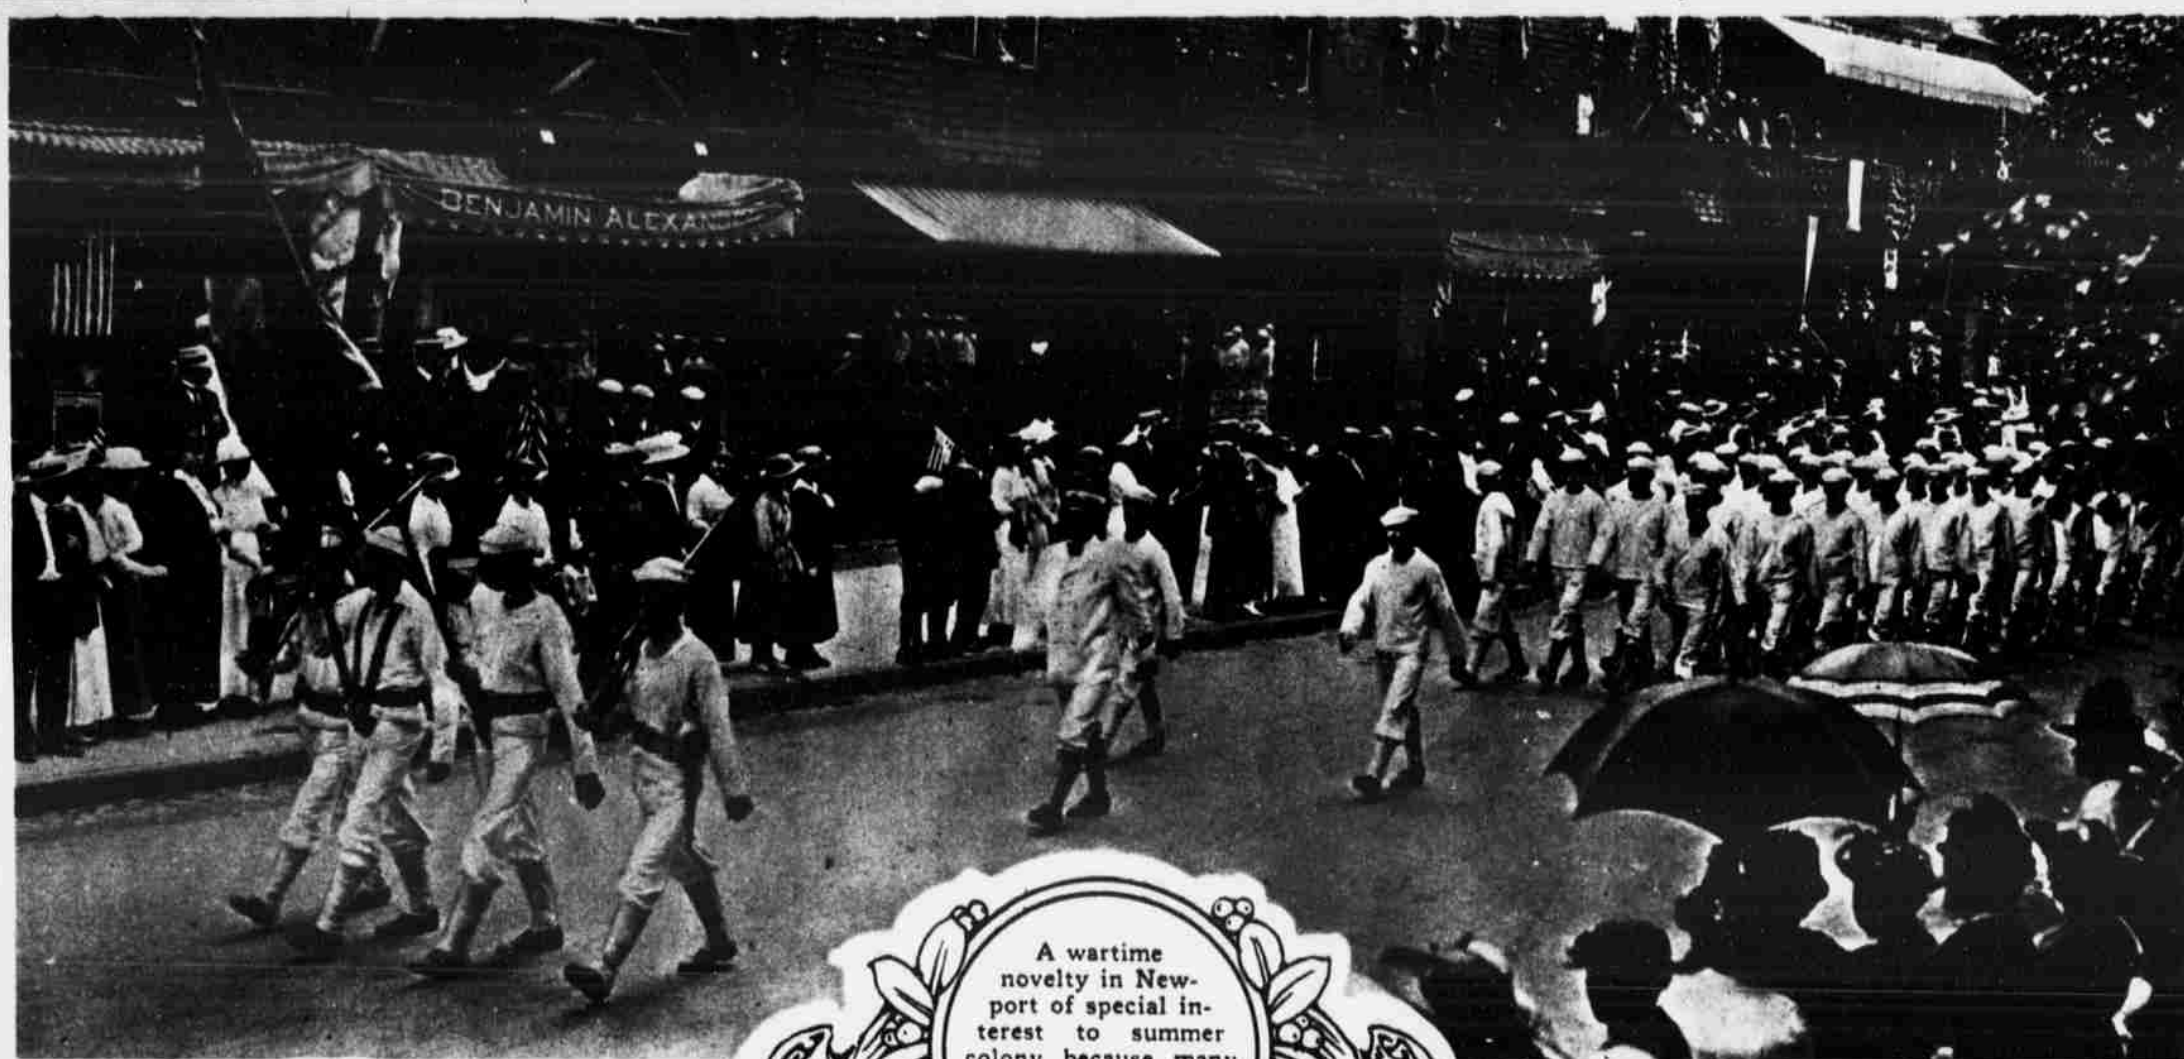

Above—Ensign W. H. Vanderbilt of the Naval Reserve, son of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt. He is on horseback as marshal of the Fourth of July parade.

Photo copyright by International Film Service.

Above—Gov. R. Livingston Beeckman of Rhode Island reviews Fourth of July parade with Mrs. Beeckman, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt.

Photos copyright by Underwood & Underwood N. Y.

Below—an exhibit of the wartime summer. The trim looking bluejacket is James L. Banks, Jr., of New York. With him is Mrs. Banks, who was Miss Vieve Fisher.

A wartime novelty in Newport of special interest to summer colony because many of its members are serving in mosquito fleet

Below, from left to right—Lieut. A. J. Iverson, Lieut. Winthrop Aldrich of New York and Ensign Ellery A. Man of New York, all of the Naval Reserve.

Bluejackets add a war note to the appearance of the summer colony at Newport. Many of its members have enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve. This photograph shows one of the resulting contrasts. From left to right—Roy F. Williams, Miss Margaret Caperton, Miss Marion Tiffany and George Hegan.

